

WAVE

Women's Association of Venture & Equity

tri-state tech wire

Becker Public Relations

March 23, 2004

o New Group of Women Venture and Equity Investors Formed

Boston -- A new group of women venture capitalists and private equity professionals has formed, based in Boston. The Women's Association of Venture & Equity (WAVE) is a not-for-profit national association that includes women working in all sectors of the private equity industry, including general partners, limited partners, placement agents and other professionals. Susan Keller and Sarah Camougis, two venture capital attorneys with the law firm of Edwards & Angell in Boston, co-founded the new group after conducting research for a year into the unique issues facing women in venture capital today. "The existence of a women's networking and mentoring group like this will assist its members in breaking into what has been a traditionally male dominated industry," WAVE said in a release announcing its formation on Tuesday. <http://www.edwardsangell.com>